

IT CLEANS THE SHIPS.

Sailing Through a Volcano Crater in the Aegean Sea.

In the Aegean sea a vessel may sail into the top of a crater, and though it is hard to find anchorage there, yet a mere sail through is a great relief to the bottom of the ships from marine growth.

More than 2,000 years ago the island of Santorin was split in half by an earthquake, with the result that what was once the crater of a volcano is now a crescent shaped harbor. Two glistening white towns of Thera and St. Nicholas are perched on the summit of the steep cliffs, whose dark and distant hue is similar to that of the top of Vesuvius. Standing out against the sky are large numbers of windmills, with many sails, arranged in a perfect circle. These are evidently employed for crushing the olives, which along with the terraced vines are the staple product of the island. The Santorin wine is of excellent quality and is highly appreciated in the Levant.

Between the main island on the east and the smaller, Thera, on the west, are the three small Knaumene islands, all of which have come into existence since the original earthquake, while the largest of the three was "born from the sea" less than 300 years ago, showing that the center of the old volcano has still a certain amount of activity.

The water in the harbor into which the sulphurous streams from this volcanic island rain has a peculiar property which completely cleans off growths of every kind from the bottom of any ship.

His Mistake.

Now sporty Woodmen
The chief recreation of the woodmen of the Puget sound country is to go to town on Saturday nights. As a valley dweller explained: "They've got money and they just blow it in. That there is the logic of it. There's no place of amusement in the town they can go to the library and sit down or go to a hotel and sit down but that don't suit 'em. No they either get drunk or go to church. Some take in both. I've seen 'em at church pretty well loaded. But eleven or twelve o'clock they start for their camp. Most ly they hire a rig and go eight or ten fellers to a team. Oh they're sporty! There's nothing too good for the loggers and take 'em on a whole they're the best class of men I ever run up against."—Clifton Johnson in Outing Magazine

Etruscan Vases.
The famous Etruscan vases were wrongly named, for though made in Etruria they were the productions of Greek genius. They are elegant in form and enriched with bands of beautiful foliage and other ornaments, figures and similar subjects of a highly artistic character. One class has black figures and ornaments on a red ground—the natural color of the clay, another has the figures of the natural color and the ground painted black. The former class belong to a date about 600 B. C. the latter date about a century later and extend over a period of some 300 or 350 years.—New York American

THE OPSONIC TEST.

What It Showed the Man Who Smoked a Great Deal

His friends knew that he would rather smoke half an hour of a play than eat about his after dinner cigar, and they were astonished when he announced that he had quit smoking. "What's the trouble?" he was asked. "Opsonic test," he replied gloomily. "What is the world is that?"

"I've been run down of late and feeling pretty blue. As there is consumption in my family, I consulted a specialist. He said I didn't have the disease yet, but he would tell me what my chances were of getting it. As I am constantly breathing tubercle germs, he explained, but healthy blood has the power to destroy them. So I took a drop of my blood and inoculated it with a certain number of germs. In half an hour he examined it under the microscope and found that only half as many germs had been killed as should have been the case. Normal, healthy blood is said to have an opsonic test of 100, so my test was only 50. He advised me to build up my strength by sanitary living, lots of fresh air and night, plenty of sleep, wholesome food and moderation in work and pleasure."

"Where does smoking come in?"

"He said that tobacco had an extraordinary effect in decreasing the power of the blood to destroy germs. Some men who smoke a great deal have an opsonic test of zero—that is their blood has no effect whatever on germs. I am fond of my cigar, but when a specialist tells an opsonic test all locked and primed at your head and says, 'Tobacco or your life' what are you going to do but throw up your hands?"—New York Tribune

AN ACCURATE CLOCK.

The Timepiece in the Observatory of Columbia University.

In the observatory of Columbia university is one of the most accurate clocks in the world. It has run for several months with a mean error of only fifteen-thousandths of a second and a maximum error of thirty-thousandths of a second per day. That means that it does not vary more than half a second a month, or six seconds a year.

Compare this with the first pocket timepiece, the "animated egg of Nuremberg" which required winding twice a day and varied an hour and a half in the same time! Compare it with some of the highest priced watches manufactured today, which often vary more than ten seconds a week and you will have some idea of the refinements in the science of measuring time. Yet even this accuracy is surpassed by some famous timepieces. If the trade magazines are to be believed there have been accounts in them of clocks or watches that have varied less than a second in periods as long as ten years.

The clock at the University of Columbia is an astronomical clock. It is surrounded by a glass case in which a partial vacuum is maintained and in order that the case may not be opened or disturbed the winding is done automatically by electricity. The clock is set up in a room especially constructed to keep it free from jar or vibration. The temperature and barometric conditions are maintained practically constant, and every possible precaution is taken to minimize the errors of the running time.—New York World

DESOLATION ISLAND.

Kerguelen Land is a Region of Perpetual Storms

Of all places on earth outside the arctic and antarctic regions Kerguelen Land, in the Indian ocean, is the most isolated and inhospitable. Indeed it is generally known to mariners not by its official title, but as Desolation Island.

Most nations have owned it by turns but it has been sooner or later abandoned by them all as worthless and this although it covers an area easily estimated at from 1,000 to 2,000 square miles. At present France is in nominal possession of it, she having annexed it in 1852.

The soil is utterly barren. Practically the whole of the interior is covered with snow fields of unknown depth, where glaciers flow down to the sea. Where there are no snow fields there are morasses and hidden treacherous mudholes.

The climate is probably the worst in the world. Terrible tempests follow one another practically without ceasing and are accompanied by torrents of cold rain, hail, sleet and snow. The Challenger expedition spent a month there, during which time there were only three fine days. And this was in December January, when it is cold summer in those latitudes.

Its discoverer, M. Kerguelen Tremarec, although at first he professed to be enraptured with it, lived to confess that it was unfit for human habitation. "Not even Eskimos," he exclaimed, "could exist there."—Pearson's

Too Cheap.
The class at Kirk had been reading the story of Joseph and his brethren and it came to the turn of the thrilling incident to examine the boys.

The replies to all of his questions had been quick, intelligent and correct such as:

"What great crime did these sons of Jacob commit?"
"They sold their brother Joseph."
"Quite correct. And for how much?"
"Twenty pieces of silver."
"And what added to the cruelty and wickedness of these bad brothers?"
A pause.
"What made their treachery even more detestable and heinous?"
Then a bright little fellow stretched out an eager hand.
"Well, my man?"
"Please, sir, they sold him over cheap."

Moral of the Garden.
Nothing teaches patience like a garden. You may go round and watch the opening bud from day to day, but it takes its own time, and you cannot urge it on faster than it will. If forced it is only torn to pieces. All the best results of a garden, like those of life, are slowly but regularly progressive.—Exchange

YOU LIKE IT

YOU are not a shoemaker, so there's no need of going into an analysis of the construction of the "Queen Quality" Shoe. But the fact remains that it satisfies over two million wearers. They know they like it; that it gives style to the foot; that it gives comfort the first day worn. And that is enough. It holds its shape longer than other ready made shoes because it fits. Yet the enormous business done on "Queen Quality" Shoes keeps the prices moderate.

A Candid Critic

"A critic is that has helped me a great deal in my work," said a man to whom I took a picture to be featured," said a young woman who spends much of her time copying in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. As the picture progressed my friends told me it was fine. Some of the other copies said it had value character, good coloring and all those things and even one of the guards in the gallery got real friendly one day and remarked that it was the best copy of that picture he had seen. I began to think that must be after all, my several years of study were beginning to bear fruit. At the framer's I picked out a nice frame and the framer began to figure on the cost. "I'll tell you what," he said. "That frame will come to $8.95. If I were you I'd get something cheaper for that picture."—New York Sun

"Setting the River on Fire"

In old English times when each family was obliged to set its own fire it sometimes happened that an energetic man would turn his sleeve so rapidly as to cause it to catch fire. The style of sleeve used in those days was called a "temse," and it became a customary saying that a lady man would never set the temse on fire. Now it happens that the name of the river Thames is pronounced like the name of this old sleeve and after many years when the old fashioned temse was forgotten it was thought that setting the temse on fire meant setting the river on fire and that is why to day we say that a stupid person will never set the river on fire.

The Guy Was Omitted

Nearly all of us players, as you said, a well known actor. I usually thought the gaudy is of a middle nature. I'll explain to you what I mean. Once at the beginning of my career I played the part of a footman. I was in this part a very broad white collar kind of Proton collar. With the leading man told me one night that with my help he would introduce a play.

All right," said I. What is the key to but? "You know how," said the leading man. In the third act I write a letter while you stand beside me and wait to carry it to your mistress. Well after the letter is finished I'll reach over to you in an absent way and wipe my eyes on your white collar. Of course it will make a large black stain but you'll see it will bring down the house."

I laughed heartily. "Capital," I said. And I'll finish the thing off with a little gag of my own. As soon as you have wiped your eyes on my white collar I'll wheel round and knock you down. Of course it will hurt you a little but you'll see it will be the bit of the show."

"Harry up, Tommy!" called mother from downstairs. Well, I'll now have you got your shoes on? "Yes mamma, all but one."

Hot Stuff

On opening a new golf course at Tankerton, Whitstable, Mr. Akers Douglas related a good story. A golfer at Hales had an brilliant experience with a local caddy. He followed so closely and was so anxious to please by intelligent attention that the player had several near escapes of severely disfiguring him. After a tedious and unprofitable round he paid him off gave him his lunch ticket and threepence for cleaning his clubs and addressed him. You know you are not quite perfect as a caddy. There is room for improvement. That an agent for an accident insurance company you are pretty hot stuff. What is your name? The address a stolid looking and hitherto silent youth moved, like Balzac's ass by the exigencies of the situation opened his mouth and replied. Mustard. Four don Express.

STAGE SCENERY.

Modern Settings Tax the Ingenuity of the Builders

The scenic artist's diletta a final test of his ingenuity in the design of the stage. They have a great effect in that they do not make the audience feel that the scene is a mere backdrop.

With the club rate productions of late years the importance of the building of a scenery has increased. Says Levegh's Magazine. Formerly when the scenery consisted merely of canvas stretched over a wooden frame it was simple enough. But the struggle for realism and sensational effect has developed difficult problems for the builder of stage scenery to solve. Every piece of scenery must be made so that it can be folded into strips five feet nine inches wide to be carried by the transporters in only six feet in breadth. Also every piece must be light and so constructed that one scene can be removed and another put in place within ten minutes. It may take thirty hours of continuous work to get the scenery set up. To use a technical expression after it is brought into the theater. After that the work of changing a scene is comparatively easy.

The lawyer looked as if he thought the agent had gone crazy.

Oxygen Tipping

"Oxygen tipping," is the latest form of the drug habit said a doctor. Two physicians have died of it this year and it is stated that there are quite a number of oxygen tippers among the bally of our big cities.

"Oxygen," you know, is a wonderful stimulant. Its inhalation keeps death off the dying for days and days. But taken regularly it soon wrecks the health. Its effect is said to be delightful like champagne. It creates gayety. Along with this gayety goes a feeling of tremendous power and lightness. Drink on oxygen the most singular and melancholy persons have a joyous and heartening idea that they can do anything in the world."—New York Press
